

On Thursday 9th November 2017 White Bridge Primary School Early Years and Key Stage 1 children took part in a Remembrance History Morning. At White Bridge we feel it is important to engage children in their education both inside and outside the classroom and to bring learning to life.

During the morning the children took part in various arts and crafts activities to commemorate Remembrance Day and the Poppy Appeal. Years 1 and 2 participated in their activities in the Infant Hall and Early Years took part in their own classrooms completing similar activities.

The activities included felt poppy making, poppy wreath bookmark making using lolly sticks, poppy potato printing, non-fiction book searching and independent wreath and poppy colouring.

At the end of the activities in the morning all of Infants came together in the Infant Hall for an assembly. The children had the chance to feedback to Miss Salmon about what they had been getting up to during the morning and why we remember those who have fought or been hurt to protect us in the past.

All staff involved were very impressed with how sensible the children were throughout the morning.
